About the Program

The Harvard Youth Leadership Conference (YLC) is a leadership development program created by professors of the Harvard Business School, Harvard Law School, and the Harvard School of Education, and held by Harvard students.

Over the 5 day course, students step away from the theoretical view on leadership and gain skills in public speaking, negotiation, presentation, and collaboration through engaging, interactive and fun activities.

Students work in a group to understand a global issue and develop a social change project to address it. On finishing the program, students receive mentorship for an entire year, to implement their project.

Harvard YLC helps students gain the confidence, leadership skills, and global perspective they need to lead change within the local and global community.

KNOW YOUR Harvard Mentors

YLC is led by Harvard undergraduate students who are leaders in their own communities. Differentiating this program are the student teachers and their youthful perspective on leadership development. Reliable and relatable, the teachers serve as advisors and friends to the students, breaking down intimidating age-based authority structures.

With tremendous enthusiasm for both teaching and learning, the teaching team constantly learns from the students, adapts to their interests and needs, and builds lasting relationships that continue after the program through formal and informal mentorship opportunities.

Social Impact led by YLC Trainees

MORE THAN 40,00,000 INR+
were raised by 100+ YLC trainees

This helped provide more than underprivileged schoolchildren in Bulandshahr, Uttar Pradesh with a unique back-to-school kit.

Their campaign made education more accessible for underprivileged children.

YLC Projects That Went Live!

Project Drakht

Started by Taahira Bhalla and Sia Bishnoi of The Shri Ram School, Moulisari – both from YLC 2016 – Project Drakht was set up to provide Ferozepur Meo, an underprivileged village in Haryana, with access to clean water.

Project Drakht has helped nearly 2,200 people from 300 families and is an example of how you can turn your budding ideas into full-fledged social change at Harvard YLC!

Teens4teens

Teens4Teens is a mental health, nonprofit organisation for teenagers, by teenagers with the aim to spread awareness about mental health and the problems faced by every teenager.

The idea for teens4teens originated at Harvard YLC 2016 and now, they have a following of over 9,000 and are doing exceptional work in the field of mental health.

Hear Why Our Participants Love YLC

One small step to a big impact

This workshop has taught me that in order to do something big in life, one need not start with a huge impact. You can start with something small and yet go on to make a big impact.

Harvard Professors Gave Lectures To Students In the UAE

AUGUST 29, 2017

This year's edition of the Youth Lead the Challenge program (YLC) has ended this weekend in Dubai. 51 young adults from 19 schools in Abu Dhabi, Dubai, and Sharjah, had the rare chance to listen to lectures on leadership and entrepreneurship from Harvard Business School's professors.

Asked about his impression of the local youth, Harvard's Jonathan Iyamdemye replied:

“Students here are much more aware of the world around them and are a lot more receptive to new ideas than what we have come across in many other parts of the globe. And I think that's possible because of the cosmopolitan culture that the UAE has.”
